Leasure resigns SIU vice presidential post

By Ron Becker
Student Writer

J. Keith Leasure has resigned from his post as vice-president for academic affairs and provost to return to teaching duties as professor of plant industries.

In a letter to "faculty, staff and students," Monday, SIU President Warren W. Brandt announced Leasure's resignation. Leasure will remain in his present position "until a replacement can be found," Brandt said.

Leasure, 54, former chairman of the plant industries department, became assistant provost in 1972. In June, 1973, he was appointed vice president of academic affairs and provost.

In a May report prepared by the Senate Committee on Faculty Status and Welfare, Leasure was charged with violating the statutes of the Board of Trustees and creating "tension and distrust" on campus.

Although the report recognizes that Leasure held his position "during a period of extreme difficulty for the University," it alleges that there is evidence to characterize his "execution of administration policy as arbitrary, autocratic, inequitable and inconsistent."

Major criticisms of Leasure centered on his handling of the termination of 104 tenured and non-tenured faculty members last December. The report cited "the attack on tenure" a "threat to freedom of speech among the faculty not terminated" because the "threat of still more terminations of tenured faculty."

The report also cited Leasure's misadministration of Affirmative Action responsibilities and a proposal by Leasure to eliminate academic advisement and channel these funds into Morris Library.

Besides "general questions," the report alleges individual cases of "apparent discriminatory and inequitable treatment." It mentions non-tenured faculty members who were retained although they were performing duties similar to those of dismissed tenured faculty.

When asked why he resigned, Leasure said that the resignation was "his own personal decision" and that he felt "no pressure" to resign because of the action of the faculty senate.

Commenting on Leasure's resignation, Brandt referred to him as a person who was "loyal to the University" during "a period of considerable stress."

It will "be of considerable assistance to me to have the benefit of Dr. Leasure's knowledge and experience available" for a "few months," Brandt said.

A committee will be formed immediately to look for Leasure's successor, Brandt said. Plans for the committee have not been finalized, according to Brandt.

'Screw' magazine editor tells philosophy

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

American people are sexually immature because sex has been oppressed and repressed for so long, Al Goldstein said Monday.

Goldstein, editor of Screw magazine, said he did not see himself as any kind of messiah for sexual freedom, rather, "a journalist writing about sex."

Goldstein was in Carbondale Monday to speak about obscenity and the first amendment. His talk at the Student Center was sponsored by the Student Government Activities Council.

The controversial editor said the magazine was not pornography, but about pornography. Goldstein said Screw was the most banned magazine in the country. It has circulation at only one per cent of the country's newsstands, he said.

"Screw will be able to last until America comes of age sexually, but, I am going to jail in the process," he said.

So far, the only legal actions against Screw have resulted in fines. However, he noted a federal case is pending in Kansas, dealing with the sending of Screw through the mail.

The magazine contains reviews of skin-flicks, pornographic books, and the latest sexual devices, he said. The magazine also features consumer reports and tests of the devices.

"We feel it is a public service to do this. People should know if a device is dangerous or not," he said. However, he noted the magazine does not refuse advertisement for a device we have found to be dangerous, that would be censorship."

Screw magazine does reflect his own sexual tastes, Goldstein admitted, but he claimed he was not Screw magazine.

"Screw is many things. Importantly, it is a review of the sexual world," he said.

He said he was not sure what a majority of Screw readers wanted. A questionnaire is planned to determine what the readers are interested in.

"Restrictions should be dropped, and sexual material should be allowed to move freely. Like water, it will reach its own level," Goldstein predicted.

He said he did not think Screw would be driven from the market by magazines similar to it.

Al Goldstein

"Screw is unique. It may have imitators, but it will not be replaced," he said.

Goldstein said that opposition to massage parlors is not localized in the Carbondale area.

"The world is trying to suppress pleasure," the chubby, 38-year-old editor said.

"New York is as provincial as Carbondale in its efforts to oppose the parlors," the editor continued.

"I do not give a shit about the special religious background of Southern Illinois or anywhere. The people trying to suppress freedom are like Communists and fascists," he exclaimed.

"Students seem to be concerned about people telling them what to smoke and what to think, they should be concerned about them telling them what they can do with their bodies or with what," he declared.

"Yes, I am a crusader. I will not go to the gas chambers like a good Jew. A crusade is the sacred right to speak out against getting shit on," he admonished.

Citizens for Decency to petition against parlors, dancers, books

By Jeff Jouett
Daily Egyptian Student Editor

Carbondale Citizens for Decency began laying the groundwork for circulation of petitions at gathering "10,000 to 20,000" signatures to influence city officials to regulate or ban massage parlors, topless dancers and pornographic book stores from Carbondale.

"If the city council fails to heed the will of the people, we'll take the initiative to put the matter on the ballot at the next election. That's what this petitioning is all about," Steve Crabtree, SIU graduate and Citizens for Decency advocate, told about 150 persons gathered Monday at the Lantana Baptist Church.

Crabtree, who read several state laws concerning obscenity to the group, said a petition signed by 25 per cent of the registered voters of the city could bring the issue of regulating the businesses in question to a vote, under state provisions for initiative referendums.

Citizens for Decency leader, Rev. Ben Glinn, urged the audience to join in door-to-door petitioning and to stand out on the streets to gather names in support of their cause.

"We're not afraid to make a move in this direction because if we don't, where will it all end?" Glinn, Lantana Baptist Church pastor, said.

The speakers protested "the obscene and decadent practices carried out in massage parlors," which they labeled "fronts for masturbation and prostitution."

Jerry Bryant, owner of the Upon This Rock bookstore which is located between the Deja Vu and New Yorker massage parlors, told the group "the articles from local papers are the only thing we have to go on that those kinds of things are really going on, because we're not going to go in and find out for ourselves."

Bryant collected names of audience members who volunteered to petition certain sections of Carbondale or solicit signatures from their church group affiliations.

Daley leads call for Democratic unity

By Dave Ibatia
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An island of confident serenity amidst the bustle of a political convention, Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago sat, arms folded and eyes twinkling.

As chairman of the Illinois delegation he commanded a desk and a pair of telephones giving him access to the rostrum. He remained alert as the long debate on the proposed Democratic party charter entered its ninth hour Saturday night. He was at home at the Kansas City mini-convention.

Daley radiated power. His lieutenants from Cook County basked in the glow. Sen. Adlai Stevenson III sat quiet and demure several seats down the row, stone-faced and uninspired. He seemed eclipsed in the mayor's umbra; at dusk, he disappeared from the convention floor, and few in the hall appeared to miss him.

Four months previously Daley had led a shell of an existence, hospitalized for a stroke. Political oracles forecast his demise and cronies juggled for position. Now he seemed fully recovered, a little thinner and a lot stronger than in the days leading down to his illness.

The mayor had returned to his own. At the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago, city police bloodied the heads of demonstrators and newsmen in the streets, while inside the International Amphitheatre Daley packed the galleries with cheering supporters of Hubert Humphrey. Leaders of the national organization rebelled, labeling the riot police "storm troopers" and accusing the mayor of "police state tactics."

At Kansas City last weekend, whenever the topic of Illinois cropped up at press conferences or party caucuses, 1976 hopefuls praised the delegation from the prairie state and especially its leader from Chicago. When the Illinois clan threw a reception Friday evening at the Sheraton-Royal Hotel, every man with an eye for the White House paid court to the mayor.

Many party regulars looked to Daley for guidance in conference controversies. In one decisive vote concerning full participation in the party as spelled out in Article 10 of the charter, the mayor provided the nudge which pushed the constitution over the top and sent the delegates away in one reasonable harmonious body politic.

Commentators had predicted that Article 10 would be the major sticking-point, with a potential of rending the conference and all hopes for a meaningful charter. Delegate and media attention turned to Daley, a barometer of the party regulars.

Article 10 proposed that local organizations pledge themselves to "affirmative action," that they make a sincere effort to assure participation of minorities, women and other outgroups. Many regulars wanted no such stipulation, voluntary as it appeared on the surface. If enforced by the judicial council established in another chapter of the charter, affirmative action could turn the party clock back to 1972, they argued.

The charter, and especially Article

10, underwent extensive compromise reviews and rewriting. Saturday, Article 10 became a pig on a spit, facing marathon rewrite sessions up to the time of voting.

Leaders came back from closed conferences late Saturday afternoon and won a one-hour recess. Reform discussants caucused to sell the compromise, which in delete qualifying clauses of the article gave affirmative action "teeth."

News analysis

One defunct clause had stated that composition alone failed to provide prima facie evidence of discrimination; another had placed a prohibition on placing the burden of proof on challenged delegates. Because of the compromise leaders expected heavy fire from regulars.

Barbara Mikulski, head of the commission which proposed affirmative action, urged party support for the compromise. Terry Sanford, chairman of the charter commission, did likewise. A host of regulars contributed to the oratory, drawing vociferous jeers from outspoken sections of the floor.

Party Chairman Robert Strauss barked his gavel and ordered, "Will the Sergeant-at-Arms please clear the aisles?" He looked about him, paused, and said, "the chair recognizes the Honorable Cecil Partee, from Chicago."

Time seemed to hang on edge. Led by Daley, the Illinois delegation leapt to its feet and cheered for the Chicagoan. Delegates leaned forward on the edge of their chairs as TV cameras zoomed in on the balding black president of the Illinois Senate.

Partee spoke of party unity, of the dead past and the promising future, of reconciliation within Democratic ranks. Eyes widened. Delegates put their chins on companion's shoulders and whispered. Reformers sat upright in surprise; their expressions turned to jubilation as they sensed Partee's position. Mayor Daley sat in his chair, folded his hands and smiled.

Partee wound up his speech, "And we support this compromise solution on Article 10, and we hope our fellow delegates will do likewise."

The hall exploded in joyous bedlam. Partee won a standing ovation. The sun had returned for the Illinois delegation. The mayor stood, applauded, and kept his cool.

ABC newscaster Frank Reynolds later cornered the mayor for an interview. Daley told him that one must allow bygones be bygones, that party unity was inevitable and that the Democrats were gradually adopting more programs for participation. "We should be a party of inclusion and include everyone, not a party of exclusion," he said.

By a deafening roar of approval, Article 10 passed the conference when presented for a voice vote. The charter was complete. The crowd went wild.

Jesse Jackson rushed up and planted a kiss on Mayor Daley's cheek.

House of Glass men earn work-release

Editor's note: This is the third in a series of articles on one man's road to rehabilitate himself and overcome prison existence.

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Few of the inmates in Illinois' Department of Corrections get to leave their barred institutions and enter one of the various work release programs maintained by the department throughout the state.

Only inmates with the best records, close to being eligible for parole, are allowed to live in the minimum security houses.

House of Glass, Carbondale's work release center, currently holds 38 men, about 14 of whom are attending classes at SIU. It takes persistence and good behavior to get accepted into the House and the men seem to be glad they are there, instead of back in the penitentiary. But that doesn't mean some of them don't have grievances and requests.

"Some of the requests of these men are valid and some are not," said Ron Meeker, acting supervisor of the House. Meeker has held his post for about a month.

"What they (the residents) fail to realize is that they're here for only six months and it takes about two years to get an overview of changes in the department."

"When we (House of Glass) began five years ago, we had no furlough system, no educational system, no volunteer program and no recreation program. Slowly but surely we're getting to the point where we can offer more programs. I feel a lot of the guys could benefit from some of the things they are asking for, but some can't," Meeker continued.

"Any time you start running this place subjectively, you start running into all kinds of havoc."

The volunteer program Meeker mentioned has been called "bogus" by one House of Glass inmate.

"You have to get your own volunteer to take you out into the community," said Dave Dombrow, who has been a "resident" for about three months, and is a graduate student in horticulture.

"Volunteers are carefully screened," Meeker said. "We just can't let any John Doe come in and take any John Doe out. We like to see what kind of person he is."

Department of Correction regulations permit residents in the education program to travel into the community only if accompanied by a staff person or community volunteer. While alone, they are confined to classes or studies at Morris Library.

Other inmates complained about the need for a chaperone to be able to do anything but study or attend class.

"I can't even go to the Student Center," Sam Hill said. Hill has served in correctional institutions since 1966 when he was convicted of murdering a fellow employee in La Grange. He spent over six years at Statesville Penitentiary in Joliet before entering an educational-release program. He has lived in the House of Glass since September.

"We're hit with a number of restrictions," Hill said. "They hit us at a very critical time. We're supposed to be out in the community. I can't even go to MacDonald's (on South Illinois Ave., Carbondale) and I'm supposed to be rehabilitated."

Dombrow said he felt the House needed to give the men more opportunity to "get out and do something. I'd rather be doing something than just sitting here. I can't go out unless I want to sneak around."

Dombrow said he has plenty of time for studying but "you can't study here. There's too many people walking around with nothing to do, too much noise."

Dombrow, who said he was "busted for drugs," was previously incarcerated in Vienna Correctional Institute.

"I had more freedom there, were at least I could walk around the 4,000 or so acres. Here, I have to stay in the House."

Ed Vider, an inmate who said he was convicted of "burglary," said "You sign a contract to get into the work-release program. If you don't sign, you don't get in."

"When you enter, you agree to act in a certain manner under the assumption you'll have access to everything on campus," he continued. Vider added that inmates are sent back to their former institutions if they fail to abide by the contract.

The work agreement, in part, reads, "I am aware that I may be removed from the program, if, in the opinion of the center supervisor, it is believed that my removal would best serve the overall interest of the program."

Meeker said a man will be spoken to if there is a question of his suitability for the program. "There has to be sufficient reason for a man to be taken out. We don't come in the middle of the night and drag someone out of here."

Hill added that he thought the 11 p.m. curfew was too early. "I work until 10:30 and have to be in by 11:00. That doesn't leave me enough research time at the library. My grades are suffering."

Tom Hinton, counselor at the House, said the staff evaluated how much library time a man needs and concluded that the 11:00 curfew gives the inmates enough time.

"The Department (of Corrections) has established that curfew will be 11 p.m.," Meeker added. "I don't know of any curriculum that needs any more library time than we've allotted."

Inmates are also awarded Independent Release Time (IRT). IRT is dispersed on the basis of time an inmate has been in the House. Hinton explained. After a man is in for four months he might be entitled to 4-6 hours IRT to be spent on weekends.

Meeker said, "Our major concern is seeing a guy come in the program, get his feet on the ground, and leave. We don't want him coming back into the department."

According to Meeker, about 20 percent of the inmates leaving House of Glass return to crime and are again locked up. "In 1972, out of 105 participants in this program, 27 went back to jail," Hinton added. In 1973, seven men returned to prison from 105 in the program, Meeker said.

Meeker reiterated his stance, saying, "The guys here are still residents of the Department of Corrections. Their accountability is very important, not only for the protection of the program, but for the protection of the individual. You have to know where the residents are."

"The program is always getting better. This was the first center to get a furlough system, volunteers also started here. All the innovative things that have helped change the work-release programs in the state started here."

Next—Hill talks about improvements he would like to see in the Illinois correctional programs.

Judge waives jury trial at request of Orescanin

Judge Peyton Kunce denied a motion to suppress state's evidence against former SIU vice-president, Danilo Orescanin, but approved the defendant's request for waiving the jury trial in a preliminary hearing Monday in Jackson County Circuit Court.

Orescanin is scheduled to appear at 9 a.m. Wednesday for a bench trial before Kunce on charges stemming from alleged illegal purchases of liquor with University funds.

Orescanin and former chief of SIU security, Thomas Leffler, were indicted in July on charges of tampering with public records in connection with alleged liquor purchases from the Carbondale Holiday Inn with University money vouchers.

Charges against Leffler were dropped Nov. 25 when Kunce denied a motion for separate trials of the two SIU administrators. Leffler has been tagged as a witness for the prosecution by State's Attorney Howard Hood.

In Monday's preliminary hearing a motion to suppress specific evidence for the prosecution was heard. David Watt Jr., Murphysboro attorney for Orescanin said "widespread publicity" about university "invoice-vouchers" would make selection of an unbiased jury difficult. He said the defense would raise objections to introduction of the vouchers during the trial.

Kunce denied the motion saying he does not want to deny either party the chance to "make a full record" in the trial.

Upon the denial of the motion to suppress, Watt asked for and received a waiver of a trial by jury.

Canut-Amoros to testify in HEW suit

By Joanne Reuter
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Marisa Canut-Amoros, former SIU professor of applied science, has agreed to testify in a class action suit which charges Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and the Department of Labor with neglect in enforcing federal sex discrimination laws.

The suit was filed Nov. 26 by the National Education Association (NEA) and four women's groups seeking to force the two agencies to enforce the laws or withhold federal funds from SIU-C and 19 other schools named in the complaint.

Canut-Amoros said she will testify in behalf of the complaint because HEW still has not ruled on SIU's August, 1974, offer to settle her sex discrimination complaint against the University.

"Instead of trying to solve the problem, they (HEW) are contributing to the women's problem by taking so much time," she said.

Her lawyer, Sylvia Roberts, originally asked her to be listed as one of the class action suit's initiators, she said. Roberts is also one of four attorneys representing the women's groups against the two government agencies.

Canut-Amoros said she refused to be a plaintiff in the class action suit because she does not feel that the defendant labor department has neglected her complaint.

Canut-Amoros originally filed sex discrimination charges against SIU with HEW's Chicago office early in 1972. She claimed her salary, summer employment and sabbatical leave were not equal to males with comparable status in the School of Engineering and Technology.

She also was seeking reinstatement as a tenured professor after her resignation from the School of Technology was interpreted by the administration as a resignation from the University in May, 1971.

Canut-Amoros said she intended only to be transferred to another academic unit and asked to withdraw her letter of resignation before the Board of Trustees accepted it.

Canut-Amoros' demands for reinstatement to a comparable position at SIU with back pay were upheld by HEW in a July, 1972 letter to T. Richard Mager, then SIU legal counsel.

HEW recommended giving Canut-Amoros corrections in pay retroactive to October, 1968, sabbatical leave modifications, pay for the summer of 1971 when she was not offered summer employment, and reinstatement wages for the academic year 1971-72 when she was unemployed.

When SIU refused to comply, the case was brought to HEW officials in Washington who supported the charges and asked SIU to make a settlement offer. Canut-Amoros said.

In August, 1973, SIU made a lump sum offer of about $50,000 which HEW accepted, she said. But she could not see the dean of the unit where she would be reinstated, before dropping her charges, the offer did not concede that sex discrimination was practiced, and the back pay was not retroactive to October, 1968, and consequently, Canut-Amoros explained, she did not accept the settlement.

Six months later, in February 1974, the labor department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance (OFCC) ordered HEW to reconsider its decision on the settlement offer. Negotiations between OFCC, HEW and the University resulted in another settlement offer in August, 1974, according to Canut-Amoros.

She said the new offer is unacceptable because the University claims since they made an offer in 1973, they are not responsible for Canut-Amoros' unemployment during academic year 1973-1974 and have refused to pay her for it.

The University blames HEW for the delay in ruling on the first offer, but the "legal counsel should know that HEW didn't have final approval on the 1973 offer. They were informed that they had to wait for OFCC's final approval," Canut-Amoros said.

Canut-Amoros and the University are awaiting HEW's decision on the second settlement offer. According to Philip Garza at OFCC, the two agencies are working together, but no decision has been made.

Canut-Amoros has another suit against SIU pending with the Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC). The FEPC suit covers legal fees not covered by the complaint with HEW, but only covers back pay to August, 1971. Both charges can be pursued independently.

religious-Christian effort, but a bipartisan, non-sectarian effort," he said. We've had interest indicated from the Jewish community and from non-religious citizens," Bryant added.

HEW rejects Affirmative Action plan

The SIU Affirmative Action Plan has been rejected again, according to sources close to the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare.

In a 26-page registered letter mailed to the University Monday, HEW outlined the reasons for the denial, it was learned Monday.

The rejected plan was submitted to HEW October 31, 1973, after the University's previous plan had also been rejected by HEW.

The previously rejected plan involved problems in format and lack of narrative explanation, according to Don Scott, HEW equal employment specialist.

Problems of substance, dealing with the method in which some basic employment data was reported also existed Scott said.

As soon as HEW has been notified that the University has received the rejection notification, the details of the denial will be made public, according to sources near HEW.

One purpose of the meeting was to select a steering committee for the Citizens for Decency. At press time no selections had been made.

Several audience members spoke out against the "indecencies", prayers were said for the petition drive and for the owners of the disputed businesses, and, at the urging of an audience member, a collection was taken up to support the petition drive.

Lucille Ashworth, president of Church Women United which represents 18 churches in the Carbondale area, read a letter the women's group had sent to Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert.

The letter voiced objection to "base and erotic business" and called for city ordinances to ban business that "perpetuate indecency and lust."

"We as a city have the responsibility to establish standards that will protect all its citizens," Ashworth said.

John McCormick, who identified himself as an "owner of a nightclub and several other businesses" in Carbondale, told the group he feels the "issue revolves on personal abridgement of freedom."

In speaking out against banning the disputed business, McCormick said, "No majority can so suppress a minority so as to take away its individual freedom. If this was not true there would be no Baptist Church today."

Conversion of wastewater plant proposed by SIU design students

By Dave Ibat
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU Design Department representatives proposed Monday that the Carbondale Northeast Wastewater Treatment be transformed into a producer of methane gas and organic fertilizer.

Speaking at the informal meeting of the city council, John Dupuis and Robert Sharneski, design majors, presented a plan to convert the treatment facility, now closed, into an Alternative Energy Research Center.

"Using grant money for development, the center will be the first of its kind in the United States," the plan statement says. "Developed in three phases, the facility will be self-supporting on an energy basis and will apply scientific research to the development of economically feasible alternative energy systems."

SIU design students began planning the facility in 1973, and have recently attracted the attention of city personnel, according to Dupuis. If established, the center may bring about interdisciplinary studies in design, chemistry, biology and business under the auspices of the University, Dupuis explained.

Dupuis said that with the advice of National Laboratories near Chicago, the design department will: 1) remodel and reactivate the facility assuring a safe, odorless operation; and 2) set up alternative energy systems. Dupuis estimated that construction of the center may take three years.

Councilman Hans Fischer suggested that the city make certain stipulations before okaying the project: That no city funds initially be committed, that the SIU Board of Trustees approve the plan, that assurances of zero pollution be made by project persons, and that structural modifications to the treatment plant be restricted in case the city needs to use the facility.

Mayor Neal Eckert said the council desires to see a definite proposal which may be put to a vote.

Two addresses head Brandt agenda

SIU President Warren W. Brandt will speak before two groups Tuesday in a schedule that can probably best be described as harried.

He is scheduled to appear first before the Graduate Faculty Council at 8 a.m. in the Student Center Mississippi Room. Then at 1:30 p.m., Brandt will again appear in the Mississippi Room, this time before the Faculty Senate.

Agenda items for consideration by the Graduate Council include several educational policy proposals and discussion of the revised University mission and scope statement, Phil Davis, council chairman, said.

The Faculty Senate will hear a presentation by the SIU Security Police. E. Earle Stibitz, senate president, said the presentation by University police will be informational in nature.

Another item on the agenda will be a report from the senate's Faculty Status and Welfare Committee about the recent equity model issue.

The committee's report details the model's workings and explains the various weighted items used in making the equity raises. The report raises questions about the model and suggests future alternatives that might be used.

Equity raises will be given again next year as the last installment of a three-year program designed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

Editorials

Massaging the decent

1974 has certainly been a tough year for the non-prurient sector of Carbondale. First they had to put up with nude students parading down Illinois Avenue in the spring, which was followed by go-go girls and gays and an adult bookstore.

Keeping with the trend, Carbondale movie theaters began showing medium, hard-core pornographic films. And now they have to read about parlors which offer masturbation with a massage and a bar featuring topless dancers.

As would be expected, a group of 'concerned citizens' calling themselves Carbondale Citizens for Decency have organized to banish the parlors, the dancing and the dirty books. Why?

Obviously, these three purveyors of adult entertainment exist because there is a demand for what they have to supply. If a sizable number of people weren't supporting these places, they would have gone out of business weeks after they had opened. As long as the masseuses aren't running out of Deja Vu Massage Parlor threatening to give 'locals' to locals, and the go-go dancers keep their glitter pasties within the confines of Whitt's Cocktail Lounge, they should all be left alone.

The position of the Carbondale Police Department is to be admired. They are taking no action except keeping the parlors under surveillance for prostitution.

City Manager Carroll Fry is probably right—the Daily Egyptian will most likely scream its head off about rights being violated if attempts are made to close these places down. Two activists in the decency movement, Rev. Ben Glinn of the Lantana Baptist Church and Jerry Bryant, owner of the "Upon This Rock" religious bookstore, say they expect few objections from students about their movement because the patrons of the businesses are largely middle-class men.

This is faulty logic of Glinn and Bryant's part because students will object to infringement of another person's rights, even though students are not directly affected.

Bryant also says he is aware the parlors have a right to be where they are. But, he adds, he also has a right to say that he doesn't want them there. Ironically, Bryant's store is located on Main Street between the two parlors, which also presumably have the right to say they don't want Bryant there.

The parlor owners have this right, but they evidently can tolerate what goes on behind someone else's closed doors.

Right now, Carbondale seems to be in a state of fascination with its newly discovered sexuality. Whether this will continue and new establishments will be added, or the old ones will close down due to the ennui of their patrons, is hard to ascertain.

According to a recent New York Times survey there are striking trends in both directions around the country since the Supreme Court's year-and-a-half old decision left the defining of pornography up to individual communities. According to the survey, what some legal experts believed would become a nationwide war on dirty books and movies turned out to be only a half-hearted skirmish. Because of legal recourses open to these establishments, and apathy on the part of both police and citizens, few places have remained closed for long.

This also applied to the control of other victimless crimes, the survey said. Carbondale Citizens for Decency, take note.

There is no need to lecture here on why we do not need laws which limit our personal freedom under the guise of 'protecting the health, welfare and safety' of everyone. Should there come a day when the Carbondale rape rate doubles and Illinois Avenue becomes lined with bottomless dancer nightclubs, live sex shows and X-rated theaters, then concerned citizens should take action. But until that day (which will never come due to lack of interest), permit these few small enterprises to operate in peace.

"YOU KNOW, CARLOS, I CAN'T SEE WHY PEOPLE PAY TO GO TO A MASSAGE PARLOR FOR A 'LOCAL' WHEN THE GOVERNMENT IS SCREWING THEM FOR FREE"

A slick situation at SIU

By Gary Marx
Student Writer

Mr. Elmer M. Novak sits cross-legged in the corner smiling across the room. Mr. Novak is here to make a deal with the University. Mr. Novak is here to talk the University into signing an oil lease. Mr. Novak is here to try and make a lot of money.

Independent oil lease brokers, like Mr. Novak, work on a "per deal basis only," he says. He is a free agent-free to hire out to any oil company he wants to a sort of mercenary oil man.

Mr. Novak was once mayor of Salem, Ill. Close to Salem is Lake Centralia. Lake Centralia is surrounded by a "huge oil field" leased by Texaco. Mr. Novak has had many years of experience in this sort of thing.

Dangers to the environment and to research top the list of concerns.

The Forestry Department is being considered for accreditation by the Society of American Foresters. One asset is the nice stands of trees in close proximity to the University; white pine and black walnut included. These are high pollution-sensitive trees and are located in the 900 acres up for drilling.

Increased traffic to the area may also hamper studies of agricultural effects on the land.

Of all the risks to the environment, oil spills seem to be the least menacing. No one at the meeting actually believes that there is much oil down there, if any at all. This area of Southern Illinois is located on the very fringe of the area mapped off as possible oil producing land. It seems that not even the geologists give this area much hope of ever producing any crude. And on a broader scene, Mr. Novak informed the committee that only about two per cent of all oil probes end up producing oil.

Viewpoint

The 900 acres of land in question is presently the home of the University's pig and beef farms. For the right to drill on this property American Petroleum Company (Apco) has made the offer of $5 per acre for the first year and an optional $1 per acre for the next four years. And if oil or gas should be found, SIU will receive 18.75 per cent of the revenue.

The Kaskaskia River Room is filled with experts from recreation, forestry, zoology, botany, agriculture, the Faculty Senate, Graduate Student Council, Student Government, the Physical Plant and Facilities Planning. SIU Interim President Hiram H. Lesar is here, Vice President for Development and Services T. Richard Mager is here, University Legal Counsel John W. Huffman is here. And, Mr. Novak is here—experts all.

Then why probe the 900? No one knows—at least not at the Campus Natural Areas Committee meeting—not even Novack; he claimed ignorance. It has been thought that Apco spun the globe and the finger stopped on The 900, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois, USA, 62901.

So, with no oil, there is no 18.75 percent. This leaves the University with $4,500 for the first year and an optional $900 for the next four years. This is the sole benefit weighed against the risk to research and environmental damage.

It may be pointed out that one student going three semesters pays nearly $900 in tuition and fees. Is one of 17,000 students as great a risk as oil probes around the countryside?

SIU will not get rich in the oil business. The crude benefits will remain the spoils of Texans and a few independent oil lease brokers from Illinois.

To the Daily Egyptian:

May I suggest to student manager, Ronald Land and WSU-FM (Nov. 26) that their appreciated "alternative service to the people of Southern Illinois" would be much more effective with a multiplex signal.

SIU-FM is being "out-alternated" on Sunday evening by a local competitor who lives with the harsh reality of commercialism and yet "cares enough to send the very best." I keep hearing rumors and promises. When will SIU-FM get an Astro-turflike transmitter?

The stereo signal does make a difference to sensitive people with taste, good looks, money, and modesty like—(blush)—me.

To the Daily Egyptian:

Library procedures at closing time are outrageous. I was a victim of these procedures last Wednesday. I was looking for materials Wednesday afternoon when closing time drew near. I gathered the necessary books and hurried to the circulation desk only to find that it was 5:02 p.m., and employees had evacuated the area at 5 p.m. I was not alone in my situation. Several other people had the same fate and had to leave their books behind as they left the library.

I find this practice infuriating. I do not see why the employees could not be scheduled so that they leave at 10 or 15 minutes after official closing time so that the people that are leaving don't have to leave empty-handed.

SIU is supposed to be serving the students (Ha!). The library is a perfect example of its failure to act in the students' interests. The situation at the library (hours, etc.) is far from being conducive to academic excellence.

Parking not a quiet matter

To the Daily Egyptian:

I read Student Writer Jim Murphy's editorial opposing the parking facility with a great deal of interest and gratification, especially with reference to the "quiet" way we approached the controversial question of the parking facility. This is the first time that I know of in my life that I have been referred to as quiet and I expect that if Murphy would have investigated it he would have found that neither my nature nor this project would permit it to proceed "quietly."

As a matter of fact, the proposal has been debated openly in your newspaper since I made it in the fall of 1972 on several occasions; it has been widely discussed many times by our Parking and Traffic Committee in open session and it has been presented in open meeting of the Board of Trustees before all the constituency heads of this campus and the world in general and on five occasions beginning on October 19, 1972, during which each stage of its development, funding, design, architectural services and need were openly and candidly discussed and questioned. It's but one part of the total package of the construction and upgrading of all parking facilities on this campus but an important part and a new and different approach to the solution of part of our parking problems. I think that two years of debate on the issue of parking facilities is probably sufficient and I hope that the need for additional parking in this area is perceived by most of the members of our community.

Finally, one of the hardest working and most efficient committees on this campus is the Parking and Traffic Committee made up of representatives of all the constituencies. No one loves dealing with the parking problem but this committee and its members and its chairman, Clifton Andersen, are entitled to recognition and support in dealing so patiently and effectively with the problem and its solution.

Oil and playgrounds

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is in response to Staff Writer Nancy Landis' article in favor of drilling for oil on SIU property.

Economically speaking, the idea of tax-free money for the University seems appealing. If you allow the drilling, think of all the parking lots and high rise classrooms you could build. And with the money American petroleum gives you to restore the land they destroy, you keep on building higher till there's no more room up there.

But where will the children play?

Nixon-Ford economic policies--the great pretenders

By Charles G. Stalon

Fourth of a series of articles on inflation.

(Stalon is an associate professor in the SIU Department of Economics.)

The economics profession has improved its knowledge of how the American economy works since the Great Depression. Three lessons, in particular, have been learned: first, economists know how to create serious inflations; second, they know how to create mass unemployment and, third, they know how to generate a stagnant, no-growth economy.

In gaining this knowledge, the economists have also learned some useful lessons about controlling and eliminating inflation and unemployment and a few lessons about generating and maintaining high rates of economic growth. Insight into the complexities of making economic policy in the current U.S. economy is gained when it is recognized that the tools of social proaches will be examined. The future holds many surprises. One or the other of them might work. Whether they do or don't, these policies will dominate the American Scene for the next couple of years.

The Nixon-Ford inflation programs

In order to evaluate any anti-inflationary program one must first recognize and appreciate the benefits of the current U.S. inflation. Resource allocation efficiency in a market economy requires that relative prices, e.g., the price of natural gas relative to the price of storm windows, reflect technological and resource possibilities to buyers. Efficiency in a world of depleting resources requires that the relative prices of such resources, and those commodities which use such resources in above average intensities, increase.

If the American economy were sufficiently competitive, the necessary changes in relative prices could be brought about without an increase in average prices, i.e., inflation. But the economy is not that competitive and it is better to change relative prices via inflation than not to change them at all.

The Nixon-Ford anti-inflation programs are designed to bring inflation under control without blocking the necessary changes in relative prices—except temporarily when political considerations force a slowing of the rate of change as they do now in slowing the rate of increase in domestic petroleum prices.

The Nixon program

The Nixon anti-inflation program is an easy one to describe: it was to create a recession. The gains expected from the recession were threefold: (1) the excess productive capacity and the high unemployment was expected to limit the power of firms to pass forward costs increases, although it was recognized that those firms which were heavy users of petroleum and natural gas would be forced to increase their prices in order to survive, thereby changing relative prices in the desired direction, (2) the high unemployment was expected to moderate wage demands from both organized and unorganized workers, thereby keeping the double-digit fossil fuel-induced inflation—which was expected to last less than 2 years—into a double-digit wage-push inflation which might last far longer, and (3) the recession would permit the domestic fossil fuel firms to easily bid labor and equipment to their control and, thereby, expand the outputs of fossil fuels in response to their increased relative prices.

The weather was unkind to the Nixon program. Public acceptance of the program depended heavily upon the forecast that falling food prices in 1974 would make the amount of the required unemployment small, not exceeding six per cent, and the duration of the unemployment short. It was expected that the rate of inflation would be falling rapidly by the fall of 1974, a forecast destroyed by the midsummer drought.

The Ford program

President Ford inherited the Nixon program, a recession over six months old, and an unemployment rate headed for seven per cent, at least. He seems to have endorsed the policy and decided to reap its benefits, since many of its costs have already been incurred and many to come are now inescapable. Moreover, Ford, like Nixon, has rejected a tax on gasoline and/or petroleum, and natural gas which would hasten the desired relative price changes and convert some of the revenues of such changes from private oil producers to the federal government.

Increasingly, this Ford program takes on the character of exchanging one deplorable situation, double-digit inflation, for another which is even more deplorable and far more dangerous to the world, mass unemployment and a stagnant economy. More and more forecasts of unemployment for mid-1975 are mentioning an eight per cent rate, that is, nearly 4 million involuntarily unemployed Americans. Even with these rates, it may take a good harvest in the U.S.

and elsewhere in 1975 to get the inflation rate down to five per cent to seven per cent.

It is doubtful that American people will tolerate such a high cost to restrain inflation, costs of the following dimensions: Gross National Product (GNP) $150-175 billion below potential, an unemployment rate exceeding 12 per cent for blacks, 20 per cent for teenagers, 40 per cent for black teenagers, increases in the income of petroleum owners by $25 billion to $35 billion per year, and the income of natural gas owners by even more. Still, they are now tolerating a GNP $100 billion below potential, black unemployment rates of 10 per cent, teenage rates of 17 per cent and black teenage rates of 32 per cent.

If the Ford program proves tolerable and if it works as forecasted, (by its supporters) by late 1975 the restrictive policies can be replaced by expansionary ones. And, the 1976 presidential elections will occur in a rapidly growing economy with unemployment and inflation falling rapidly.

When the unemployment rate falls below 5 per cent—well after the 1976 elections—the inflation problem will reappear, but hopefully not double-digit inflation.

Tomorrow: The Democrats' Policies.

control considered politically acceptable in the U.S. for reducing inflation are those which are efficient for creating mass unemployment. Similarly, the politically acceptable tools for expanding employment opportunities and stimulating economic growth are those efficient for creating serious inflation.

The lesson for Americans from this dilemma are reasonably clear: if inflation is to be stopped without mass unemployment and a stagnant economy, some tools of social control not previously politically acceptable are going to have to be used. Public opinion polls indicate that the public is increasingly willing to undertake such experiments. But there is, as yet, no significant evidence that the key interest groups—principally, but not only, big labor and big business—are willing to submit to any experiments which limit their freedoms. For this reason we must expect the administration and the Congress to stick to past policies for some time.

Before turning to an examination of new policies which promise some success in moderating inflation without mass unemployment, the Nixon-Ford approach and the likely Democratic Congress ap-

Issues chosen by educators

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The issue of who should control public education was judged the most important by more than 200 delegates to the biennial Region Five conference of Phi Delta Kappa, international education fraternity, at the Student Center last weekend.

Saturday, the members chose five of the 18 issues as the most important. In order of importance, the four other issues are:

—how schools can promote "the development of individual initiative and independence together with social responsibility."

—alternative methods of teaching on the secondary level.

—role of educational agencies in furthering equal opportunity, and developing mutual respect, tolerance, understanding and advancement of "human dignity."

—the role of students, parents, professional educators, publishers and politicians in curriculum control.

According to James Quisenberry, member of the SIU chapter, the issues will determine priorities for the fraternity to follow "during the next several years."

Other events which highlighted the conference included awards to chapters for outstanding performance in service, research and leadership, and a workshop Saturday entitled, "Teacher Assessment for Improvement."

Members also voted Sunday not to revise their policy of permitting only those with baccalaureate degrees as members of Phi Delta Kappa.

St. Louis Jazz Quartet rocks Shryock

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

After their Convocations show in Shryock Auditorium Friday night vocalist Jeanne Trevor of the St. Louis Jazz Quartet admitted the group always has fantastic "luck" at SIU.

What a performer might regard as luck, however, is first observed by an audience as "skill." The St. Louis Jazz Quartet has earned a reputation at SIU, having performed here twice before. This latest appearance adds one more evening of great entertainment to their credit.

Standing out as the group's "feature" attraction was vocalist Jeanne Trevor, who scattered and wailed her way through a variety of inspired jazz improvisations. Although Trevor is no longer the group's main focus, her vocal skills and charismatic personality still put her in that position.

"I'm glad that people noticed the focus on the instrumentalists this time, too. After all, we are a quartet," she said later. Among Trevor's better numbers of the evening were "Come Back To Me," "Mercy, Mercy Mercy," "C.C. Rider" and the group's encore, "St. Louis Blues." During another blues song, Trevor's tuneful humming beautifully replaced the traditionally inserted blues cornet solo.

At times, Trevor's vocal gymnastics interfered with a song's meaning, particularly on the slower ballads like "God Bless the Child" and "You Make Me Feel Brand New." Her interpretation of "Let It Be" began with tremendous gospel power, but started to suffer once she began injecting anecdotes about David and Goliath and Jonah and the Whale. The song eventually ended in disappointing rock style, a long distance from its great beginning.

For the majority of the evening, however, Trevor's judgment was on target, packing her songs with choice phrasing, extended and shortened syllables, and vocals that could slice air without the help of a microphone.

When Trevor wasn't on stage, which was only about 20 per cent of the time, the audience was treated to instrumental jazz compositions performed by pianist Ed Nicholson, percussionist Charles Payne and bass player Terry Kippenberger. Nicholson's piano playing was particularly good, and his accompaniment on "Good Morning Heartache" even managed to outshine Trevor's vocals.

Drummer Payne, who had dotted the evening with quick and undiluted solos, got the chance to run it all out at once on Miles Davis' "All Blues." Nicholson and Kippenberger left the stage, and when they returned the audience was as exhausted and as exhilarated as Payne from the dynamic solo.

Among the instrumental compositions performed during the evening were "Theme from 'The Prize'" "Moment to Moment," an original composition written by Nicholson and "Love for Sale." In this last number, Kippenberger impressed the audience with his wah-wah pedaled string bass solo, which he accompanied with his own brand of mumble-scat "singing." Another solo by Kippenberger, in which he bowed his bass, was not as impressive.

When the St. Louis Jazz Quartet was here last in May, 1973, a man in the audience invited them to do a tour in Australia. By the time they left Shryock Friday, no similar offer had been made but it didn't matter.

The group plans to settle down for a while and do night club work in St. Louis, and then hopefully be able to go on to do recording work—something which will suit their fine and unique talents.

Apple festival plans trial run

A four-day trial run for the 1976 bicentennial and silver anniversary year of the Murphysboro Apple Festival is planned for the 1975 apple festival.

"We plan to have the greatest celebration in Southern Illinois in 1976," Marion Nash, general chairman, said Friday.

"The festival in 1975 is a dry run." Previous celebrations have been three days, he added.

The 1975 celebration's theme is "The World and Its People," Nash said. Dates have been set for Sept. 10 through 13.

Changes for the 1975 year, based on problems in 1974, include using more country and blue grass music as entertainment, building a larger reviewing stand for the apple peeling contest, and scheduling an earlier start for the apple peeling contest and the auction of the apple pies and apple butter.

The committee is also trying to reorganize the high school band competition, which was scheduled for previous years but did not receive enough interest.

The 1976 festival will be the 25th anniversary of the Apple Festival as well as bicentennial year for the United States, Nash said. Plans for the 1976 festival include a reunion of previous apple queens in addition to the parade and contests.

The committee for the festival meets a month after the festival to "discuss problems and talk about the following year," Nash said.

No definite plans for a main attraction have been made for 1975 or 1976, Nash said.

Fashion show pays tribute

By Deborah Singer
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Members of the audience at the "Uniquely Yours" fashion show were almost as fashionably dressed as the models. That could be because the sole purpose of the show was not to merely preview new fashions, but to pay tribute to the memory of Kenneth Garrison, deeply respected ex-brother of Phi Beta Sigma fraternity.

Despite nasty weather, the turnout was a credible measure of the respect felt for Garrison within the black community at SIU. The fashion show was a fund-raising attempt for the Kenneth Garrison Memorial Scholarship, recently established by Inter-Greek and Black Affairs Councils. Held Sunday at 1 p.m. the show was jointly presented by Sigma Gamma Rho sorority and Phi Beta Sigma fraternity.

Garrison, who died last October of a brain tumor, was praised in a speech by Richard Starks, ex-president of Phi Beta Sigma and Garrison's good friend. Starks remembered him as a man who cared deeply for others, "especially those who had less than him." He was always ready to give food, or a place to sleep or help in any way to those who needed it, said Starks.

Commentators for the program, were Ken Ward and Gail Wooten. The first part of the show was called Sensuously Yours, and featured lounge wear for both men and women. As each model walked out, the commentators gave some personal information about them.

All of the models chose the clothes they wore, and many originally designed or constructed outfits were shown. Stores that participated by donating clothing were: Brook's, Main Street Boutique, Kay's Campus Shop, Blum's, Goldsmith's, Caru's Mens Shop and the Squire Shop Ltd. Shoes were contributed by Zwick's.

Burglars hit local restaurant, get away with near $640

Burglars got away with about $640 Sunday from Booby's restaurant at 406 S. Illinois Ave., police reported Monday.

The police report said the burglars apparently entered the establishment by going through the exhaust system which they entered from the roof of the building. A Booby's employee said the burglars left through the garage door in the back of the establishment.

Entry occurred sometime between 3:45 and 8:40 a.m. Sunday, according to the report.

Sanford Field, Booby's owner, reported the burglary after opening the establishment at 8:40 a.m.

The thieves pried open a money cabinet and attempted to pry open the pinball machines, the report said. The Booby's employee reported one of the machines was damaged from being pried but no money was taken from the machine. He said no other damage was caused by the burglars.

The police report said the money was in bills and coin.

Special week on PBS

WSIU-TV is participating in the Awareness Week for the Public Broadcast Service (PBS) that began Friday.

David Rochelle, director of the SIU Broadcasting Service, said the national campaign will be the topic of several talk shows on Channel 8 this week.

One purpose of the promotion is simply to let people know "we are here," Rochelle said. "We hope viewers will become aware that WSIU is an alternative network with programs that are different from those on the commercial networks," he said.

For instance WSIU has community access shows on which local issues can be discussed. PBS produces high quality information and educational shows along with cultural programs such as concerts and drama. "We are asking local people to give our station a try," Rochelle said.

Irv Jensen, president of Friends of WSIU, will be the guest on "You're in Good Company" Tuesday at 9 p.m. to talk about public broadcasting. He will appear again on the 15-minute show "Conversations" Friday at 6:30 p.m.

On "Viewpoint," Friday at 9:30 p.m., members of "Friends of WSIU" will be present to discuss the public broadcasting issues.

Virginia Mampre, station program director, said all of the public service announcements made during the week will deal with public broadcasting awareness.

Fund raising is another aim of the awareness week, Rochelle said. The station is fully supported by SIU and can continue to operate without outside donations. However, any extra contributions allow more and better programming, Rochelle said.

Friends of WSIU is a non-profit organization that receives gifts for the station through the SIU Foundation. Members of the group will appear on WSIU throughout the week to talk about donations, membership and general promotion of the station.

Southern Illinois is fortunate to have a public station supported by the university, Rochelle said. In other communities the public stations are supported almost entirely by private donation.

The matter of federal funding for PBS is another issue to be discussed during the week. At present, the federal government supplies 10 percent of the network's funding. However, the actual amount varies each year. This makes it very difficult for PBS to make long range plans, Rochelle said.

It has been suggested that public broadcasting be supported entirely by state and local government. Another suggestion is to support the network by taxing luxuries such as cigarettes or television sets. It will probably be several years before a permanent arrangement is made on the federal level, Rochelle said.

The Canon F-1. Images are what it's all about.

Photographic equipment can be a trap. Sometimes you can get so involved with it that you lose sight of your real purpose -- making photographs.

The Canon F-1 can help you forget about equipment and concentrate on images. It was designed, and functions, as an extension of your photographic vision. It's responsive in a way that you must experience to appreciate

And since it was conceived as a system camera, every part works together with effortless smoothness, from the more than 40 Canon FD and FL lenses to the over 200 accessories.

The heart of the camera is its central spot metering system. With it you can use anyone's exposure system, no matter how critical, since it only measures the central 12% of the finder area -- regardless of the focal length used.

So if you're spending too much time lately worrying about your equipment, it's time you stopped, and took a good look at the Canon F-1 system and Canons other fine cameras -- the automatic, Electronic EF, the full-feature FTb, and the TLb. If you're interested in images, Canon's your camera.

Did You Know

By Steve Shafer

Did you know that President Gerald Ford came close to playing pro football? After his career as a linebacker and center for the University of Michigan in 1929-34, he turned down an offer to join the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

One of the most amazing comebacks ever seen in any football game happened in a game between Yale and Harvard in 1966. Yale led 29-13 with only 42 seconds left. But then Harvard scored two touchdowns and a pair of two-point conversions in just 42 seconds to tie the game 29-29 in one of the wildest finishes ever.

Here's an oddity about the Miami Dolphins. They won the coin flip before the start of every football game except one last season. They won the toss in 13 of their 14 regular season games, and in all three of their post-season playoff games!

Model Cities staff begins polling city

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Interviewers from Carbondale Model Cities program began visiting 250 homes in the city Monday evening to study the program's effects, according to George Ervingham, Model Cities staff member.

The interviews are expected to be completed in two weeks, Ervingham said.

The survey will aid city planners in finding new directions in community planning, he said.

"The houses will be picked randomly, using a city directory which lists every house in the city," Ervingham said. "We assign random numbers and have alternates in case some homes are vacant," he added.

City Manager Carroll Fry said the random technique is one of the most accurate because it allows any house to be picked by chance.

Ervingham said the poll has 97 questions. The original poll, used in questioning residents of the Model Neighborhood on the northeast side, contained 160 questions.

"We eliminated some of the questions because they did not pertain to persons living outside the Model Cities area," he said.

"The interviewers will be briefed Monday afternoon and will begin visiting houses that evening," he said.

This survey differs from a previous survey conducted by Model Cities in 1969 Ervingham said.

"In 1969, we were groping for directions to go in. We needed diagnosis. Now we need both diagnosis and impact," he said.

"Since some of the people we contacted this time were in the first survey, we are hoping for some pre-test and post-test evaluations. A box is to be checked on the survey if a person has lived in the same place for over five years," he said.

All the information obtained in the surveys will be kept confidential and will become part of pool information in the computer. Persons will not put their name on the form, only their house number which will be discarded once the information is processed he said.

"We will be using the University's computer to evaluate the results. This survey is also part of graduate studies program," Ervingham said.

Information obtained in the survey will be supplemental to studies made by the citizens participation group, he said.

"The information will be turned over to the city manager and the city planning office to aid them in further community development," he said.

The survey was delayed two weeks by the city hall fire which gutted the third floor containing the Model Cities offices, he said.

Food, clothing to be collected for local poor

Operation Merry Christmas will begin Tuesday when National Guard trucks travel northwest Carbondale Streets with food, jackets and coats.

According to Steven Levine, R.R. 2 Lakewood Park, Operation Merry Christmas is a jointly sponsored program to collect food and articles of clothing for distribution to poor families in northeast Carbondale.

Sponsoring the group are the Carbondale Police Community Service Center, the National Guard, the Devine Information Center, Ananda Marga Society and Various fraternities and sororities of SJU.

Volunteers will collect food in the northwest sector of Carbondale Tuesday, in the southwest sector Wednesday and Thursday and in the southeast sector Friday. National volunteers and the collected food throughout Carbondale, Levine said.

Food will be distributed in the northeast sector Dec. 18 through 20, Levine said.

Berlena Bursery, in Police Community Services said food will be distributed to individuals and families on public aid first, then senior citizens (in the high rise) and then to people whose names have been called into the center who are needy.

Levine said food can also be dropped off between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. at 1198 W. Main, which was the building for Paul Simon headquarters.

Persons interested in helping collect food, can contact the Ananda Marga Society at 549-6642 or the Police Community Services Center, Levine said.

Bifocal or single vision contact lenses can be fitted now with the aid of a computer. Bifocal lens has no segment or line to distort the vision and looks like a single vision lens.

With the use of a PhotoElectric Keratometer called PEK Mark III, a photograph of the eye is made. The photo, along with the prescription is sent to the Visual Data Center in Chicago where they are put into a computer. The computer calculates the structure, size, tear layer and the RX required.

The advantage of the lens is usually more comfort and longer initial wearing time.

Jim Hart readies himself to throw one of his patented bombs during a Cardinal practice session, to favorite receiver, Mel Gray.

Hart now a famous name in SIU sports

Quarterback makes it "big"

Here, Hart is caught in a difficult assignment. Unfortunately, women quarterbacks have never made the Saluki team, despite the tutoring of Hart.

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Several weeks ago the St. Louis Cardinals and Minnesota Vikings were the feature Monday night attraction.

"What's SIU?" Howard Cosell mumbled over the air as an ABC camera shot a banner held by members of SIU's Marching Salukis who were performing at half-time.

"That's where Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart played his college ball," Frank Gifford answered.

Until this year, whenever the sporting history of SIU is brought up in conversation, names like Walt Frazier and Ivory Crockett were always mentioned. Now, nine years since he finished his collegiate career, Hart is being mentioned in the same breath, when it comes to discussing alumni who have made it as professionals.

"I still have a lot of friends down at SIU," Hart remarked in a recent interview. "I am sure they are as excited about our success as we are."

Hart, at 6-1, 215 pounds, has led the surprising Cardinals to a 9-4 record and a playoff berth.

Many writers have labeled the Cardinals, "the team of destiny," and this doesn't bother Hart.

"I don't care what they call us as long as they treat us with respect and believe that we have accomplished the things that we have legitimately," Hart said after finishing an easy pace practice.

The Cardinals have a winning attitude that is reflected in their practice session. Laughter and words of encouragement filled empty Bush Stadium as the Cardinals prepared for the New Orleans Saints. The Saints stunned the Cardinals Sunday 14-0.

Hart came to SIU in 1962 because he wanted to play football. "I wanted a chance to play football and I didn't think I would get the chance at a larger school.

Hart quarterbacked the Salukis for three seasons, 1963-65. During those three years, the Salukis finished with a 8-21-1 record. Not impressive, but Hart was truly the Star. Every SIU quarterback record, but one is held by Hart. The Evanston native completed 283 passes during his three-year career for 3,779 yards and 34 touchdowns.

Despite suffering three losing seasons at SIU, Hart had hopes of playing with the pros. "I had been led to believe that I would be drafted and when I wasn't it was a disappointment," the Cardinal quarterback remarked. "I was confident to believe that I could get a try-out somewhere. My coach at SIU, Don Shroyer, was going to the Cardinals as a coach and he was the one who initiated the move, so I signed with the Cards as a free-agent."

Hart earned a reserve squad berth his first year on the Cardinals and played in the final game of the season. Four days before the 1967 pre-season opener, Hart became the No. 1 QB when Charlie Johnson was called into the Army.

When Don Coryell took over the Cardinal head coaching chores in 1973, one of his first decisions as head coach was to name Hart his No. 1 QB.

"Jim is having a very great year," Coryell said after a recent practice. "This year he has additional confidence and he has a better team behind him."

"The line is more experienced and Jim is doing a tremendous job throwing the ball. Jim is one of the top quarterbacks in pro-football."

The statistics back up Coryell's statement. Hart has completed more than 50 per cent of his passes this season, with only one game left. He has thrown for 18 TD's while completing more than 50 per cent of his passes this season, with only one game left. He has thrown for 18 TD's while completing 167 passes. More impressive is Hart's interception total which stands at seven, one of the lowest marks in the pros.

This year during the Viking game, Hart became the all-time best Cardinal passer, but before the beginning of the 1974 season Hart had some doubts dealing with his future in football. Last year Hart missed several games because of an injury. "I had a hyper extension of the right elbow, Hart explained, "but it is very healthy now."

"I was very glad the pro-football strike occurred during pre-season for selfish reason."

"I didn't know how my arm was going to respond in training camp. I knew if I had to go through six weeks of two-a-day practices, it would be very difficult."

"Having to go through only a week or so of practice with five quarterbacks in camp made it durable and I didn't have to put my arm to a real test," he said.

Hart showed that his arm is just fine several weeks ago when he threw the ball 60 yards to Mel Gray at the goal line during their victory over the New York Giants.

"I didn't see Mel, but I knew where he was going to be," said Hart with a smile. "I was being rushed at the time and I threw it as hard and as far as I could, knowing that Mel would be in the general area."

The Cardinals started off the year with seven straight victories, but they have lost four of their last six games. Many critics are blaming the non-consistency of the Cardinal offense, for the second half-downfall, but Hart disagrees.

"We're not going to change a thing in our offensive plan," Hart said. "The only reason people blame the offense is because we have lost games or won them in the last few seconds."

"We don't care how we get the points on the board, whether it comes in spurts or sustained drives. We've been able to win quite a few ball games playing in spurts, so it's nothing to be concerned about."

In several weeks the Cardinals will begin fighting it out with eight other teams in the play-offs. The playoff teams are gunning for big money, but for Hart, the post-season games involve pride.

"The first time I ever heard about money in reference to the playoffs was this week," said Hart. "It was just a passing remark by someone."

"Playoff money is certainly frosting on the cake, but the big factor for me is pride. You're not going to have the money the rest of your life, but you'll always have the memory of at least being in the playoffs."

Despite the year he is having, the publicity has not been tremendous, according to Hart. "I don't make myself that available or seek out the publicity like some people may."

Jim Hart contemplates the Cardinals' future in the playoffs.

Hart said. "After practice I like to go home and be with my family."

Since the beginning of the season, Hart has given the St. Louis area an added insight into a Cardinal football game, by commenting each Monday morning after the Cards play over KSD radio.

"The idea of a radio show was thought up by the people over at KSD and I enjoy it very much."

Even though it has almost been a decade since Hart scored touchdowns at McAndrew Stadium, he still follows the Salukis.

"If I don't see the SIU score, someone usually points it out to me," Hart said.

During the last two years, Hart has appeared at the Special Olympics held in Carbondale.

"I intend to keep on going down to Carbondale for the Olympics as long as I'm invited back," Hart commented. "I enjoy working with young people."

The Cardinals made a great move when they signed Hart as a free agent in 1965, because as the old song says, "You've Got to have Hart."

Group to stage 'Messiah'

By Joanne Reuter
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

George Frederick Handel's best known oratorio "The Messiah" will be performed by the combined University Choir, Chorus and Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in St. Xavier Catholic Church, Walnut at Poplar streets.

Conducted by Robert Kingsbury, associate professor of music, the orchestra and 107 singers will perform the complete work both nights. "The Messiah" is an undramatized musical narrative of Christ's life using soloists, chorus and orchestra.

Handel composed "The Messiah" in a period of two weeks in honor of an invitation to Dublin in 1741, where the Messiah was first performed. He was supposedly so enthusiastic he could not record the score quickly enough, covering the original manuscript with hasty blots and smears.

According to legend, when King

George II of England heard "The Messiah" in 1742, he was inspired so greatly that he jumped to his feet during the "Hallelujah Chorus." His courtiers and the audience also rose, setting the custom for audiences to stand during the chorus.

"The Messiah" consists of three parts. The first describes the prophecy of the coming of Christ, the second deals with his sufferings and death, and the third details the resurrection.

Handel stopped writing operas and turned to religious oratorios like "The Messiah" after a short period of ill health and waning public support. The Bishop of London had also banned scenery and action in religious works. Handel's musical poems without scenery, costumes or action brought Handel renewed fame.

The grand scale of Handel's works sparked Beethoven to call him "the greatest, ablest composer that ever lived."

"The Messiah" includes solo parts for voices and instruments. Soloists in SIU's performance will be Jean Brixey, soprano; Catherine Mabius, contralto; David Doyle, tenor; Alex Montgomery, bass; John Boe on harpsichord; Marian Botje on cello and John Rankin on trumpet.

The public is invited to both performances and admission is free.

Gymnasts improve

By Dave Wiecezorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The scores were lower, but performances improved, so women's gymnastic coach Herb Vogel was happy with his team's performance in the Ozark Invitational Friday at Southwest Missouri State (SWMS).

"The scoring was lower in this meet, although the routines were better than the ones we did at the Midwest Open," Vogel explained. "I don't know why they were awarding low scores."

Cheryl Diamond of SWMS won the individual all-around title, but SIU's women were all bunched at the top in each of the four events.

SIU sophomore Dianne Grayson finished second behind Diamond for the all-around title with a total of 34.95. Diamond totaled 35.10.

Sandi Gross finished a close third with 34.55, and freshman Denise Diddier pulled up fifth, both for the Salukis.

Individually, Grayson did not repeat her championship performance at the Midwest Open, and settled for a second place on the beam scoring an 8.95. Diamond won the event.

SIU freshman Laurie Bremer came up with a respectable routine to score an 8.8, good enough for third place. Stephanie Stromer was awarded an 8.75, and Patty Hanlon an 8.5 for fourth and sixth place, respectively.

In the floor exercise, Grayson downed the seemingly indestructible Diamond, flipping and twirling to a 9.0 mark. SIU's Beth Shepard finished third with an 8.85 followed by Gross, Diddier and Stromer in fourth, fifth and sixth.

A couple of the higher scores in the meet were awarded to Gross and Diddier in vaulting. Gross won the event with a fine 9.2 average. Diddier's 9.15 was good for second. Bremer and Shepard nailed down the fifth and sixth places, respectively.

SIU finished 1-2 in uneven bars with unusually low scores. Shepard, an elite-class gymnast a year ago, captured first with an 8.75 performance. Gross placed second, Ginger Temple fourth and Grayson fifth.

Wrestlers recover from shelling

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

SIU's composite wrestling score for the weekend: Opponents 67, SIU 43.

SIU's composite weekend record: two wins, one loss.

Unlikely, indeed, but that was the tale, after the Salukis recovered from a 35-3 demolishing at the hands of Lehigh Friday night to salvage a successful weekend Saturday.

The Maroon-and-white nudged Maryland 19-18 in an afternoon contest that wasn't as close as the score would indicate, then tripped up East Stroudsburg 21-14 in an evening outing.

"Altogether, the guys did a heckuva job for wrestling four matches in four days," Saluki coach Linn Long remarked. "When you outcondition a fresh team in your fourth match in that situation, you've accomplished something."

Long was not so proud, though, of the weekend-opening match in Bethlehem, Pa., against Lehigh, an utter blitzkrieg which came on the heels of a 17-14 Wednesday loss to Navy.

"I don't know how to say it without sounding very biased," he mused, "but the first thing that happened was we let Navy get off the hook, so Lehigh and its fans really got wound up and crushed us."

"We have a young team, with young kids who couldn't take the pressure," he said. "They beat the tar out of us. We could play them somewhere else and have a close match, or even play them there if we got down to business."

The Salukis never were able to "get down to business" Friday, though, as 150-pounder Fred Hoef escaped with the team's only win, a 6-2 decision over Mark Stauffer.

No one else was close, although 190-pounder Marvin Martin was the only victim of pin. He went down in 1:15 to Lehigh's Don McCorkel, after the match had long been decided.

A raucous crowd of 2,000 fans watched as the hosts boosted their record to 2-0, while SIU fell to 0-2. "I can see Navy beating them by about the same score they beat us," Long said. "I'm not sure the officials and fans know we're from the East. They treated us like we were Russians."

The Salukis turned their momentum around the following afternoon, though, barely clinging to a lead that once mounted to 13 points. After the margin reached 19-6, Salukis Mark Weisen (177) and Jay Friedrich (190) were decisioned, and heavy-weight Ken Karwowski was pinned for a final 19-18 total.

Karwowski's conqueror was monstrous 330-pounder Bill Ellis, who required three minutes to dwarf the mismatched Saluki.

"After what happened against Lehigh, we had one of two choices," Long said. "We could show some guts and go out and compete, or we could lay down and die. Maryland has a good team, but the meet was not really that close."

The final outing against East Stroudsburg was decided largely in the opening 12 minutes, when 118-pound Saluki, Joe Goldsmith pinned Randy Tillman in 3:23. That original six-point margin spread to 13 points at 21-8, before the visitors once again saw defeat in the high weight classes.

Mike Stanbaugh edged Friedrich 6-5 in the 190 match, and teammate Don Lehman nudged Tim Swoboda 4-3 for the final 21-14 team score.

"Everybody got whipped a couple of times," Long remarked, reviewing the Eastern trip as a whole. "It's kind of like going against Ohio State and not gaining on every play. If the score stays tight and you whip a few, you've done a good job."

The grapplers will work on techniques for a few days, then break for exams while Long embarks on a recruiting tour. Two-day practices will begin Dec. 27, in preparation for the team's next meet Jan. 4 against Northern Illinois.

Northern is always good competition," the Saluki mentor said. "It's been a slam-bang, crash-boom rivalry down through the years."

"Illinois State and Western Illinois are the same type," he added, concerning two more foes the team will face during semester break. Those two meets are Jan. 15-16, following a Jan. 8 bout with Tennessee-Martin, whom the Salukis have never faced, and a Jan. 11 meet against Illinois, which dominated its invitational earlier this season.

The Salukis face Marquette Jan. 17 and enter the Wisconsin Quadrangular Jan. 18. "The three Wisconsin schools in the quadrangular will be rested, and we won't be," Long said. "It will be a good test of our adhesiveness."

Salukis capture ISU Relays

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The field of competition wasn't filled with Indianapolis or Southern Cal's, but the Saluki swimmers came up with an effort at the 11th annual Illinois State Relays that might serve as a future warning to swimming foes.

Coach Bob Steele's swimmers easily outdistanced Purdue and 10 other teams for the championship, 137-115, Saturday afternoon at Horton Pool and set several meet records in the process.

SIU, made up of mostly freshmen and sophomores, struck hard and fast, and practically blew its competition out of the water.

Saluki tankmen captured six of 10 events, while finishing second in three more. SIU divers finished fourth and seventh, respectively in the one-and three-meter diving competition.

Steve Odenwald, sophomore from Belleville, found it tough going against Cincinnati University's Monte Hopkins, and Odenwald found himself behind by more than a length-and-a-half of the pool in the day's first event, the 1500-yard freestyle.

However, captain Dave Swenson took charge in the second 500 and set the pace for the rest of the meet. Swenson gradually ate away at Cincinnati's lead and, when he completed his leg of the race, gave a three body-length lead to Jorge Delgado, who brought the victory home in record time, 14:34.9.

"All our swimmers were pretty tired going into Saturday's meet," Steele commented in his office Monday morning. "We put them through real tough workouts all week, so they did not have a lot of speed Saturday."

You would have never known that the Salukis were not at full speed, as they went on to break or tie five more records after Swenson's Tazran performance.

SIU tied the meet record in the 400-yard medley. They were never really challenged, although they lost the lead early in the race. However, Dennis Roberts turned in an excellent freestyle leg and finished in first by several feet.

The combination of Roberts, Rick Fox, Tony Wickham and Dave Boyd won the 500-yard freestyle in record time, 4:16.7, giving SIU a sweep of the first three events, all in record time.

Rough waters were ahead as the Salukis slowed up a bit and registered second place finishes in both the 300-yard individual medley and the 300-yard breaststroke.

The individual medley was won by host Illinois State. SIU's Curt Mateer edged out Saluki Jamie Powell by three-tenths of a second for first place.

It was a highly competitive race between the 'Dogs' and the Redbirds, and SIU coach Archie Harris was extremely jubilant.

Delgado, Fox, Wickham and Boyd came back for the 800-yard freestyle and performed in record time with 7:10.4 clocking.

Northwestern set a new meet record in the 200-yard freestyle, the only race SIU didn't place in.

SIU broke two more records in the 300- and 400-yard freestyle events and finished second behind Purdue, which won the 300-yard backstroke relay in record time.

Between the three SIU divers—veteran Steve Ruddell, Stu Volkow and Gus Carbonell—they totaled 15 points. That put Southern behind Purdue by 13 points before the swimming competition got under way.

Cagers shoot past Missouri-Western

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

SIU finally put it all together Monday night, defeating Missouri-Western 96-64, at the Arena.

After playing three relatively close games during the first week of the season, the Salukis enjoyed a breather as coach Paul Lambert cleared the bench throughout the second half.

Joe Meriweather was the dominant factor in the ball game hitting 31 points while pulling down 9 rebounds. The 6-11 center blocked several shots during the game, intimidating the Griffons.

The Salukis shot 55 per cent from the field while hitting 33 per cent from the charity stripe.

SIU is now 3-1 for the year, losing to Vanderbilt Saturday night 72-79. (See story below.) The Griffons fell to 3-3. Eleven different players scored for the Salukis Monday night in front of 4,764 fans who were cheering at the end for the Salukis to hit the Century mark.

Shag Nixon hit 11 points for the Salukis while Mack Turner chipped in 10. Other scorers for the Salukis were Tim Ricci and freshmen Milton Huggins hitting for eight, Dave Montfort and junior college transfer Kern McKelvey chipped in seven. Corky Abrams hit 4 and Mike Glenn and Perry Hines contributed two points.

Jeff Browne led the Griffons with 23 points. The Saluki defense caused Missouri-Western to turn the ball over 30 times, while SIU committed 21 turnovers.

Missouri Western hit 37 per cent from the field during the ball game.

Hot shooting and tough defense led the Salukis to a 46-27 halftime lead.

Opening up with a full court press, the Salukis took a quick 4-0 advantage before the Griffons poured in their first points of the evening.

The Griffons fought back to tie the score at 8-8 once during the first 20 minutes of play with 15:41 remaining. Meriweather hit 18 points in the first half to lead the SIU attack. The all-American candidate pulled down seven rebounds and blocked two shots.

Despite holding a 19 point halftime lead, the Salukis turned the ball over 13 times while their opponents committed 12 turnovers.

SIU shot 59 per cent during the first half of play hitting 22-37 shots. The Griffons shot a weak 37 per cent from the field.

"There were some good plays, some good passes, but you can't determine anything when the game gets blown open like it did tonight," Lambert remarked after the ball game. "There were a lot of turnovers, but anytime you have 80 shots by one team and 70 by the other you're going to have turnovers."

Glenn, who only hit two points against Missouri Western, saw only 20 minutes of action. "Mike (Glenn) and Tim (Ricci) took a very physical beating against Austin Peay Friday. I felt that if I could get away without using them too much, that would be all the better," Lambert remarked.

SIU takes on defending Big Ten champ Michigan Wednesday at the Arena starting at 7:35 p.m. Several thousand tickets are still available for Wednesday's game, according to SIU ticket manager Neoma Kinney.

Tickets for the Michigan game can be purchased at the SIU ticket office, in the Arena from 14-30 p.m.

Vandy bumps off Salukis

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

"Even the Boston Celtics would have a hard time winning here," a reporter laughed late Saturday night as host Vanderbilt won its 10th Vanderbilt Invitational crown in 12 years, defeating SIU 79-72.

Playing in front of 11,200 partisan fans, Vanderbilt took a 24-22 lead midway through the first half and never gave up the lead again.

Vanderbilt held a 42-38 half-time lead, but the Salukis came back to tie the score at 48-48 with 16:32 in the game. The Commodores jumped in two long jump shots to tie a four-point lead with 15:50 remaining on the scoreboard.

Hot shooting by the Salukis kept the game close until the Commodores hit three straight buckets giving them a nine-point lead with three minutes left in the game.

The Salukis finished the night hitting 48 per cent from the field.

"We didn't contain the guy we had to," Lambert said.

That "guy" was Vanderbilt's Jeff Fosnes, who led the Commodore offensive attack with 26 points. Fosnes was named the most valuable player in the tourney.

"We knew that if we didn't stop Vanderbilt's outside game, we would have some serious problems," Saluki coach Paul Lambert remarked outside a quiet locker room, adding "and we didn't."

Vanderbilt won the game at the free-throw line where they hit 15 of 20, but the Salukis pumped in a meager 4 of 4. The Salukis committed 19 personals while the hometown heroes were only whistled on eight occasions.

"I don't want to comment on the officiating," a disappointed Lambert remarked, "but I felt that there were several questionable calls."

Joe Meriweather, playing his first 40-minute game of the season without running into serious foul trouble, paced the Salukis with 28 points and 12 rebounds. The 6-11 center was one of five players to be named to the all-tournament team.

Mike Glenn ended the evening with 12 points, 10 of them coming in the first half. Other scorers for the Salukis were Corky Abrams with 10; Tim Ricci, eight; Mack Turner, six; Shag Nixon, four, and Perry Hines and Ricky Boynton, two apiece.

"We didn't get the big play against Vanderbilt like we did against Austin Peay," Lambert remarked, as his team prepared for Monday night's contest.

Gymnasts breeze to third in Windy City

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Chicago's Windy City Invitational could have been a breeze for the SIU gymnasts.

With Jim Ivcek, that is. However, with the senior transfer ineligible until January, the Salukis had to make do without him, and "make do" they did, with an impressive third place finish in the 18-team meet.

Coach Bill Meade's acrobats accumulated 209.05 points, a vast improvement of 11 over the previous weekend's performance. Indiana State took top honors with 213.45, and Iowa State grabbed second with 212.25.

Nebraska was fourth with 206.25, followed by Illinois State with 203.65. All top four opponents will face SIU in dual meets, as will Illinois, which finished tenth.

"The kids did a really great job Saturday," Meade said. "I thought we'd be fighting for fourth, but we really placed. Now the kids realize we're not a one-man show."

"Substituting Ivcek's average score, we figure he's worth six-and-a-half points to us," he added. "That puts us in first, then consider when Kim Wall's wrist is better and Lance Garrett's ankle trouble is over. We'll be a much stronger team Jan. 2 than we are now."

"Now" is nothing to sneeze at, though, after Saturday's performances. Jack Laurie and Glen Tidwell placed 1-2 in the parallel bar competition with 8.85 and 8.8, respectively.

Ed Hambl finished second and Tony Hanson fifth in the pommel horse, with 9.15 and 8.95, respectively, while Tidwell tied for third in the high bars, and Wallace claimed sixth, with 8.9 and 8.7, respectively.

In the long horse, Jim McFaul finished sixth with 8.85, and Jon Hallberg was seventh with 8.75. McFaul and Steve Shephard placed 6-7 in floor exercise, with 8.75 and 8.65, respectively, and Laurie took sixth in the still rings with 8.75.

"Everybody qualified for the finals except one guy for us," Meade said. "Overall, we had our highest team score yet in the pommel horse, and our floor exercise men finally got it together and scored over a nine average for our four men that counted in the scoring."

"We had two men over nine in everything," he added.

Tidwell also placed fourth in the all-around out of 54 athletes with a 52.20, matching his highest total last season. Hallberg was eighth with 50.80 about even with his scores at the end of the last campaign.

The whole meet was most encouraging, our best performance of the year," Meade reiterated. "We had to count a 6.85 in one event, an 8.1 in another and a 7.95 in another, and figuring Jim (Ivcek) is going to score a 9.2 or 9.3 in all of them, we're in good shape."

The Salukis will have to operate without Ivcek again next weekend, when they travel to Denver, Colo., for the Friday-Saturday Rocky Mountain Open Championships.

However, Ivcek will get to compete in the meet as an "unattached" gymnast and will vie for the all-around title.

"Jim will have a good crack at the individual championship," Meade forecast. "But Wayne Young of Brigham Young, the top U.S. gymnast at the World Games, will be there, too."

About 18 teams are expected to participate in the meet, including many of the top Saluki foes, Iowa State, Arizona State, New Mexico and Brigham Young all fall in that category.

"There will be real good all-around competition, and tough team competition," Meade said. "Right now, I'd settle for third place again, behind Iowa State and Arizona State. I'd be happy with the same kind of performance out of the kids."

"The compulsories will count in this meet (They didn't at Chicago), so that will make it tougher," Meade added. "We'll go with pretty much the same team and see what happens."

Puhr honored

The Associated Press College All-America Football team was announced Monday and SIU's Bruce Puhr was named to the honorable mention list as a wide receiver by the nation's sportswriters and sportscasters.

Puhr was among 13 players named honorable mention wide receiver.

Puhr set a single season receiving record at SIU grabbing 36 passes for 627 yards for a 17.4 average. The senior from Chicago's St. Lawrence High School, caught a pass in every Saluki game he played.
